TUESDAY EVENING, FEB. 16, 1858.

The streets of Jacksonville, Ills, were lighted for the first time with gas on Saturday night, the 6th inst., and since that time the streets lamps have been burning brightly.

Thos. B. Stevenson, of Kentucky, has been confirmed by the Senate as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court for the Territory of New Mexico.

KENTUCKY LEGISLATURE.—A bill to amend the laws authorizing the taking of stock by Hardin county in the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Co. has passed both houses.

Also a bill concerning the Louisville and Covington Railroad Co.

On Monday, the Senate passed the following House bills:

A bill to amend act 7, chap. 83, of the revised statutes in relation to supervisors. A bill to amend sec. 2, art. 3, chap. 58, of the revised statutes. A bill to amend and change sec. 10, chap. 13, of the revised statutes—title, "change of venue." A bill to amend sec. 17, art. 4, chap. 47, of the revised statutes—title, "courtesy and dower." A bill to amend the act to require turnpike and plank-road companies to make semi-annual dividends. A bill to regulate the fees of sheriffs. A bill to amend title 18, chap. 2, of the code of practice. A bill to amend sec. 832, chap. 3, art. 1, of the code of practice. A bill to charter the Kentucky wood-works.

The House bill to extend the charters of the Bank of Louisville, Bank of Kentucky, and Northern Bank of Kentucky was passed by a vote of 24 to 11. We have already published this bill.

A bill to amend sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, and 11, of article 2, chapter 93, of the revised statutes, title "slaves, free negroes, &c.," was taken up; [it allows importation of slaves as merchandise,] was passed by a vote of 20 to 13.

The Senate concurred in the Utah resolutions passed by the House.

A bill to amend the charter of the Bank of Ashland was passed by a vote of 20 to 12. It contains the same provisions in regard to dealing in bills of exchange and issuing small notes as the bill rechartering the old banks.

The vote rejecting the bill to extend State aid to internal improvements was reconsidered.

The following bill concerning the Southern Bank was passed by a vote of 22 to 10:

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That the President and Directors of the Southern Bank of Kentucky shall have authority to open a branch, at such time and place as they may think proper, twenty days public notice being given of the same, for subscription of the residue of stock authorized to be taken by individuals, to be paid in as required by the original charter.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That the Governor of this State be and he is hereby authorized and directed to subscribe for all stock the Commonwealth is allowed to take in said bank, to be paid for as directed by the original charter, either in money or bonds; but, in case said bank will agree to reduce the rate of interest on the stock held in the bonds of the State by said bank to five per cent. instead of six, as now allowed, then, and in that case, the whole residue of the capital of $2,000,000 may be taken by individuals, and the Commonwealth, in that event, yield and hereby relinquish its right to subscribe for any further stock in said bank, and the ten on the assets of the bank, created by an act entitled an act to amend the act entitled an act to establish the Southern Bank of Kentucky, approved Feb. 15th, 1856, is then released, and the bonds of the State shall be no longer stock in said bank.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, That the commissioners of the sinking fund be and they are hereby authorized to purchase the bonds of the State, now held by the Southern Bank of Kentucky, at any price not exceeding their par value, or any bonds which, under this act may be given in exchange for them, and relieving the lien mentioned in the second section of this act, whenever, in their judgment, it would be to the interest of the State to do so. And in making said contract with said bank said commissioners are hereby authorized to relinquish the right in the State now held to subscribe for additional stock in said bank if they think it will be to the interest of the Commonwealth to do so.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, That if a contract should be made, under this act, between the said bank and the commissioners of the sinking fund, by which the existing right of the State to take $400,000 of additional stock in said bank should be relinquished, the said bank, the President and Directors of said Southern Bank, if they think proper to do so, are hereby authorized to establish an additional branch of said bank at Lebanon, in Marion county, with a capital of not less than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

The House of Representatives, on Saturday evening, passed the following bills:

Making it felony to steal valuable dogs; to amend chapter 86 of the revised statutes concerning the mileage of witnesses attending circuit and quarterly courts; regulating the valuation of property assessed for taxation; authorizing special agents to execute process; to amend section 1, article 17, chapter 28, revised statutes; to repeal sub-section 2, of section 2, of article 3, chapter 54, revised statutes; to amend an act entitled an act to charter the Southwestern Agricultural and Mechanical Association; to incorporate the Corrythian Lodge No. 74 of I. O. O. F.; to amend an act creating the office of inspector of lumber in the city of Louisville; to amend the charter of the first German Protestant St. Peter's congregation of Louisville; declaring it unlawful for the presiding judge and clerk of a county court to be appointed executor, administrator, or guardian in the county in which he holds his office; amending article 2, chapter 56, title landlord and tenant; to amend the charter of the Bank of Kentucky; to authorize the Barren county court to subscribe stock in the Barren County Railroad.

The Senate resolutions in relation to the Federal Court were concurred in.

On Monday the House passed an act incorporating the lumbermen's and builders' planing company, after being amended.

The following are the resolutions in relation to Utah, which have passed both houses:

WHEREAS, It appears from information received that the authorities and people of the Territory of Utah have refused to acknowledge the duties they owe to the Constitution and laws of the United States, and placed themselves in an attitude of open rebellion to the General Government; and it having been recommended in the annual message of the President of the United States, that a sufficient military force be employed to enforce the laws of Congress which are necessary and proper for the government of that Territory; and it being provided in the said Constitution, that the Governor shall have power to provide for raising volunteer companies of cavalry, artillery, light infantry, and rifles, agreeable to the laws of the United States, at his discretion.

Resolved by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That the Governor of this Commonwealth be, and he is hereby authorized and empowered to organize and officer a regiment of volunteer troops, to be called for such term as their services may be required by the General Government, and tender the same to the President of the United States; and the Governor be requested to offer such regiment to the War Department as soon as it may be organized under this resolution.

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted immediately to the President of the United States, and also to our Senators and Representatives in Congress, with the request that they present the same to the consideration of that body, and urge that provision may be made by law for the acceptance and equipment of such regiment.

NUMEROUS AND FATAL ACCIDENTS.—We regret to state that several fatal accidents occurred by the immense concourse of persons assembled in the public thoroughfare to witness the rejoicing and illuminations in honor of the royal marriage. The number of people congregated in St. James's Park between Buckingham and St. James's Palaces was enormous, and as the royal cortege approached there was a terrific rush, and numbers were knocked down and trampled on. Mr. R. Franklin, of Long-acre, was taken up irretrievably; his skull was fractured, and he was otherwise fearfully injured. He was removed to Charing-cross hospital. Mrs. Dawson, of 34 Southampton street, (Clarendon square), was also frightfully injured, and her daughter, Jessie Dawson, was crushed to death. Mrs. S. Newton, of 17 Edward street, Regent's Park, was knocked down and trampled on, and lies in Charing-cross hospital without hopes of recovery, as also does Mrs. Eliza Davis, of Upper St. Martin's lane. A great many persons were admitted to Westminster hospital and St. George's hospital; and while viewing the illumination near London-bridge Mr. Joseph, of Middlesex street, Whitechapel, was knocked down and run over. He was taken to Guy's hospital, where he died.

TONLETHIAN AND MUCKLETONIAN CLUBS.—Their Origin—Objects—Members—Incidents—Surviving Officers.—A recent number of the Gazette contained an article with reference to the Muckletonian Clubs, interesting to those who have a liking for sports of the field, and particularly to the devotees of that art which Isaac Walton says is "worthy of the knowledge and practice of a wise and a serious man."

In compliance with the request at the close of the article, I shall endeavor to furnish a brief history of the origin and objects of the Tonlethian and Muckletonian Clubs. "Muckletonian Club."—Mr. Bird Smith, "Deputy Grand Chief and Grand Harpooer," is still living, a substantial farmer of Woodford county, Ky., and is in the enjoyment of robust, ruddy health, possessing quite as much ardor for the "red and reel," as he did at the date the diploma was signed, sealed, and delivered to his honored father, Martin Smith, Esq. I met him by chance, last fall, on a bright November morning, on the banks of the Ohio (a great fishing river, in the vicinity of Lexington) in pursuit of his still favorite pastime, angling. While standing upon the Rock Bridge, at Patterson's, preparing to cast my line, I was unexpectedly greeted with his cheerful "Good morning," followed by the question of immediate interest to the angler, "Do they bite?" I invited him to dismount, when he joined me with his half dozen rods, minnow bucket, etc., and we had a day's fine sport. Mr. Smith, though nearly seventy years of age, presents a noble, manly front, over six feet in height, straight as an Indian, is quite vigorous, and as enthusiastic and earnest in his pursuits, either of pleasure or profit, as a youth of twenty. With this introduction to Mr. Smith, I shall now give, nearly in his own word, the history of the ancient and honorable orders of Tonlethians and Muckletonians.

Major John Tilford, for many years President of the Northern Bank of Kentucky, and Charles Wilkins, Esq., of Lexington, founded the Tonlethian Society, and were the only officers and only members at the beginning. Their rules forbid any member eating fish that were captured in any other way than by the hook. (This rule, however, they found means to evade.) If a violation of the rule was charged upon a member, the accused would call up a brother as a witness, who would testify that the accusation was false, and all other evidence to the contrary was nugatory. A candidate for admission had to undergo a wearying and patience-trying ordeal. E. J. Winter was the founder of the Muckletonians. He was very intimate and on the most friendly footing with Tilford and Wilkins. Winter, a man witty, and of a humorous and sarcastic turn, was everlastingly ridiculing the two grand officers and the Society of Tonlethians. He would tell them that he belonged to a society more honorable and ancient than theirs—he was a Muckletonian. "And who are the Muckletonians?" was the inquiry. The answer was, "Myself and my two pointer dogs." The friends of Muckletonism continually wrangled about the respectability of the societies. Disinterested persons became interested by their mystic colloquies, and numbers were proselyted to Winter's party, which soon became formidable. The strife now grew warm as to which should excel. The Tonlethians sent diplomas to distinguished anglers, written on paper, the seal representing fish-hooks, two for the president, and one for the vice president. The Muckletonians sent their letters patent, written on parchment, to persons dexterous in the arts of hunting and fishing, with authority and privileges as set forth in the synopsis of the document published in the Gazette.

The Muckletonians claimed for their Society great antiquity, commencing at the time when the first man, Adam, was driven from the Garden of Eden. All great men they claimed as Muckletonians, without regard to country, religion, or politics. Most of the members were young men, who were fond of field sports, hunting, fishing, and fowling, and had no particular object in view, save to minister to their health and pleasure. But there grew out of these societies social relations, which were warmed into friendships that were never estranged. The game and fish were served up in princely style, generally at the hotels, where there were great reunions and merry-makings.

A diploma was sent to John T. Gray, Esq., of Louisville, like the one sent to Martin Smith, with the addition of a Muley's umbrella, with authority to press any Tonlethian into service, to hold the umbrella over the head of our worthy and well-beloved brother, John T. Gray, when angling. The diploma was put into a tin box, and the top sealed with wax. It was then enveloped in some fifty sheets of paper, with a tape binding to every envelope, with occasional suitable mottoes inscribed. The case and umbrella were then put into a wooden case, and forwarded, with injunctions not to open the package, unless it be in the presence of ten good and true Muckletonians. Mr. Gray invited the ten to take supper, when the case was opened. It was stripped of envelop after envelop until patience was no longer a virtue. At length the tin box came to light, on which was written, "Perseverance is a Conqueror." The victory was now thought to be won, but lo! the top was found to be soldered on. "D—n it, let's take a drink, and send for a tinner!" The tinner was sent for, the ten Muckletonians refusing to have supper until the pestiferous case was opened and its contents known. Mr. Gray had his diploma framed, and it is doubtless still in existence. The parchment of these diplomas was so exquisitely executed, with the great seal pendant on ribbon interwoven in the margin, together with the seals and signatures of the grand officers, that they were objects of admiration, ornament, and curiosity.

In Louisville, the order spread like fire in the prairies. The materials were there, well suited to its object—a noble, social population, with fish and wild game in abundance in the vicinity. Bergoos and barbecues were the order of the day, to which the Lexington members were invited, and in return the Louisville members were invited to feast in Lexington. Being at Louisville, says Mr. Smith, in 1820, in honor of the Deputy Grand Chief of all the Muckletonians, a fishing party was gotten up, to come off at Tarescond's Island, situated on the falls, at the foot of the Kentucky shoal. It was the best fishing place then, with the seine, on the Ohio river. The island belonged to Tarescond, a Frenchman. He had lawfully prohibited fishing upon his premises, but the Muckletonians were determined to go there and abide the consequences.

Before they had made two hauls with the seine, Tarescond made his appearance and ordered them off. John T. Gray, drawing out his diploma, said, "Look, Mr. Tarescond, here is the charter sanctioned by all the great men of Europe, Asia, Africa, and America. Bonaparte being the greatest of all great men, has given to the Society of Muckletonians, of which we are a part, granting the privilege of fishing and hunting whenever and wherever we please." He then read the diploma to the Frenchman, who seemed to be struck dumb with amazement. He shrugged his shoulders until they were high over-topped by his head, and said, "It is all very well—it may be so; you are very welcome, Mr. Gray, to fish here when you want, but the vagabond fishermen, by far, shall not put seine in de water."

B. Reed McIlvaine received his commission of Cut and Thrust from his novel manner of slaying alligators with a sword cane in the swamps of the Mississippi. Martin Hawkins was one of the early pioneers of the "dark and bloody ground." He was a second Nimrod, and a king-fisher. He frequently went to the lake to bottle up fish-eggs to propagate lake fish in the waters of the Elkhorn. On one occasion, while engaged in seine-hauling in James river, to make sure of a large sturgeon he mounted his back and thrust his hands in his gills, which closed on him as tight as if confined in a vice. The sturgeon got out of the seine and carried his captor over the falls. For this feat he received the commission of Grand Sturgeon Rider.

If B. Reed McIlvaine is living, there remains five surviving officers of the thirteen of the Muckletonians, viz: Leven L. Shreve and Jas. Anderson, of Louisville; James Trotter, of Jessamine county, and Bird Smith, of Woodford. M. LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 10.

A few days since, a mother in the poor house at Taunton, Mass., gave birth to a child weighing eight pounds, the mother being eleven years old, and the father but fourteen. The mother herself was born in the poor house. What a commentary upon poor-house life.

A young man without money among the ladies is like the moon on a cloudy night—he can't shine.

GOING HOME WITH A GIRL THE FIRST TIME.—We were sixteen sixteen and seventeen years of age when the event about to be related transpired, and as a description of our personal appearance at that time is absolutely essential to the point of our story, we will give it as concisely as the subject will allow. In reference then to the period, to say that we were green, in the usual acceptance of that term, would give the reader but a poor idea of the figure we displayed. Rather imagine a tall, lean, cadaverous, swarthy-looking chap, with legs like a pair of tongs, a countenance about as expressive as a plate of Dutch cheese, a mouth that came very near making an island of all the head above it, a face covered with a furze that looked very much like the down on a newly-hatched gosling, with a gait that would lead a bachelor to suppose that we designed to travel down both sides of the street at the same time, and you have a correct daguerreotype of Jeems in the seventeenth year of his age.

One dark gloomy night in the month of December, we chanced to be at a "pelling school" not a thousand miles from Birdsville, where our eyes fell on a "silly form" that immediately set our susceptible hearts in a blaze. She was sixteen, or thereabouts, with bright eyes, red cheeks, and cherry lips, while the auburn ringlets clustered in a wealth of profusion around her beautiful head, and her person, to our ravished imagination, was more perfect in form and outline than the most faultless statue ever chiseled by the sculptor's art. As we gazed, our feelings, which had never before aspired girlyward, were fully aroused, and we determined to go home with her that night, or perish in the attempt. As soon as school was dismissed, and our "lady love" suitably bonneted and cloaked, we approached to offer our service as contemplated, and we then learned an important lesson, viz: the difference between resolving and doing. As we neared her, we were seized with a partial blindness—red, green, blue, and yellow lights flashed upon our vision, and we were disoriented like witches in a phantasmagoria—our knees smote together like Belshazzar's when he discovered the handwriting upon the wall, while our heart thumped with apparently as much force as if it were driving tenpenny nails into our ribs. We, in the meantime, managed to mumble over something, which is perhaps known to the Recording Angel, but certainly is not to us, at the same time poking out our elbow as nearly at right angles with our body as our physical conformation would admit.

The night air blew keenly, which served in some sort to revive us, and, as our senses returned, what were our emotions on finding the cherished object of our first love clinging to our arm with all the tenacity a drowning man is said to clutch a straw. Talk of elysium, or sliding down greased rainbows, of feeding on German flutes, what are such "pheellics" in comparison to those mighty ones that swelled our bosom high unto the bursting of our bursting button! Our happiness was sublime and sublimity, sublimely sublimated, and every person who has ever felt the divine throbbing of a fagged love principle, fully understands the word of bliss couched in the fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh words at the commencement of this sentence.

Well, we passed on pleasantly toward our Sally's home, talking of "love and dove, and dart and part," until so courageous had we become that we actually proposed to go in and sit awhile, to which our "lady love" graciously assented. Alas for us—how soon were we to be reminded that "the course of true love never did run smooth."

Sally had a brother of some ten summers, who accompanied us along the way, and who was in wonderful high spirits at the idea of his sister's having a beau, and would walk around us frequently, giggling in the height of his glee, and eyeing us as closely as if ours—if Sally were the world-renowned Siamese twins, and he was taking his first look.

Bill, by the way, was a stubbed, chuckle-headed boy, whose habits would have made the fortune of any two dealers in mopags.

At length we reached the door, and while we were letting them down Bill shot past us and tore for the house as if pursued by a thousand bulls of Bashan. He swung open the door with a bang, and exclaimed at the top of his voice:

"Mother! mother! Jim Clark is comin' hum with our Sally!"

"Is he?" screamed the old woman in reply; "wall, I declare I didn't think the said 'he' knew enough!"

THE REISSUE OF HARTFORD COUNTY BANK BILLS.—A Clerk's Story—How he Fell from Duty.—We published yesterday the fact that Walter S. Carter, of Middletown, had acknowledged that the bills of the Bank of Hartford County, supposed to have been burnt, were abstracted from the treasury office and put in circulation by him. Since then we have had an interview with Mr. Carter, and from him learned all the facts connected with the matter. It is the old story of speculating in stocks, which has led so many to ruin. He tells us that when he entered the treasury office he was barely twenty years of age, and of course without the fixed habits or principles of persons more advanced in life. His associations brought him in contact with men who were constantly dealing in stocks, and a knowledge of their gains induced him to invest his savings, then amounting to something over a thousand dollars, in a similar manner. His first operations were successful, and he excused himself from duty, and in a short time again doubled, and his success seduced him into more extensive operations. What he conceived to be a favorable opening for an investment of about $800 occurred one day when he had not the money, and he used the funds belonging to the State—this was his first offense.

In this way, from time to time he was led on until he had used from $8,000 to $10,000 of the funds of the State, balancing his account by his own memorandum check, which, of course, he expected to make good. He excused himself from duty, and in a short time again doubled, and his success seduced him into more extensive operations. What he conceived to be a favorable opening for an investment of about $800 occurred one day when he had not the money, and he used the funds belonging to the State—this was his first offense.

Things went on in this way until the first Monday of April, 1854. With it came the State election and the success of men whom he knew would displace him from the position he then held, and an exposure was sure to follow unless the funds were replaced. Stocks had gone out of sight, and he had lost all he had taken—and then for the first time he began to appreciate the fact that he had committed a crime. What to do he did not know. Once he went to New York to take a steamer for Europe, but the steamer sailed, he was not on board, and he again returned to Hartford. The rest is already known to the public. It was to make his account good, where discovery would soon be made if things were left as they were, that the bills of the bank were abstracted and used.

The amount of bills thus taken is not accurately known. It is somewhere from $8,000 to $10,000. Mr. Carter tells us that some months since he formed a resolution to disclose the whole matter, as a relief to his own conscience, as well as to relieve other parties from suspicion which might attach to them. One thing and another has prevented him from doing so, but when he received the summons to appear before the grand jurors, he resolved to make a "clean breast of it," and he has done so voluntarily. No other person is implicated in the least—he takes the whole matter upon himself. So far as is in his power, Mr. Carter has made reparation to the bank, having assigned to them all his assets of any character whatever.

This is the story; it was told us with evident sincerity, and we have no doubt of its truth. It carries with it its own comment, warning all to abstain from the first departure from the path of rectitude. LAUGHABLE.—At a church of "color," not twenty miles from this city, the other evening, the minister noticing a number of persons, both white and colored, standing upon the seats during singing service, called out in a loud voice:

"Get down off dem seats, both white man and color, I cares no more for de one dan de oder."

Imagine the pious minister's surprise on hearing the congregation suddenly commence singing, in short order—

"Get down off dem seats, both white man and color; I cares no more for one man Than I does for de oder."

The oldest married couple alive are supposed to be Mr. Snyder and his wife, who reside at Burnside, Pa. He is 111 and she is 107 years old, and they have been married about 93 years.

IN accordance with our annual custom, we, at the close of each season, offer the balance of our stock remaining on hand at prices much lower than usual. Owing to the financial revolution which has overspread the community for the last three months, we have been obliged to MARK DOWN OUR STOCK

availed ourselves largely of the rare opportunity offered to PURCHASE FOR CASH.
The benefit of which we have been and are still offering to our generous patrons.
To all who have not already supplied themselves we would say that this

A CARD.
We would respectfully call the attention of the public to a MARINE CHRONOMETER placed in our window, showing the exact time. It is entirely of American manufacture, and has been exhibited at the World's Fair in Paris in competition with the best London and French chronometers, and also at the World's Fair in New York, and in every instance has received the highest premium for unequalled workmanship and correct time-keeping.
To our watch department we have secured the services of Mr. Ed. Helwig, of New York. Mr. H. can execute any kind of watch-work fully equal to Jurgensen, Frodham, Adams, or any of the first London or Swiss makers.
In many fine Watches that are broken parts are substituted greatly inferior to the original, the customer paying the full price for a perfect piece of work. The Watch apparently performs well afterward for a while, but is more imperfect and less valuable than originally.

ED. T. STURGEON.

Captain Wm. V. Taylor, of the navy, died at his residence, in Newport, at 2 o'clock, on Thursday morning, aged 70 years. It is stated that in the battle of Lake Erie he navigated the Lawrence, Commodore Perry's flag ship, into and during the action. His last cruise was in command of the Ohio 74, on a cruise to the Pacific. Since that time the infirmities of age have gradually overcome him.

Our friend Sparks writes with the facility of a knight of the quill. Besides all his other good qualities, he is a handsome man, and we shall not be surprised to hear of his kindling a flame in some lady's bosom.

To the Editors of the Louisville Bulletin:

ADAMS EXPRESS COMPANY,
Louisville, Feb. 16, 1878.

Robert Castillo, one of the unfortunate men who was shot in Indianapolis on Saturday night last, died of his wounds at one o'clock yesterday morning.
The other, Christopher Hohl, at 12 o'clock last night was still breathing, but his death was momentarily looked for. Yesterday, Gilligan, the captured mur-derer, was clandestinely conveyed by the sheriff to Mr. Hohl's residence, and some men called in who favored Gilligan's appearance and all brought in Hohl's presence. The sheriff then called upon Hohl to know if there were any among those present who shot at him on Saturday night last. After looking at the inmates closely, his eyes fell instantly upon the murderer. Ah, said the dying man addressing himself to Gilligan, you are one of the party who shot me! and killed poor Castillo. Are you not?
Gilligan did not directly deny the accusation, but tried to palliate it on the plea of his being intoxicated when the deed was done. The prisoner, after being identified by his victim, was forthwith returned to safe keeping to await further developments.

The other participant in the outrage is still at large, and no clue has yet been obtained of his whereabouts. When interrogated, Gilligan strictly protested against divulging the name of his accomplice.

Throughout the whole of yesterday Indianapolis was the scene of intense excitement, every thoroughfare being thronged with exasperated citizens, and each countenance teeming with indignation. At one time during the day a crowd assembled who would have taken the prisoner forcibly and hanged him had it not been for the expostulations and eloquent appeals of the authorities. I am happy to state that the pleadings of the city fathers had quite an excellent tendency. None of the gentlemen were unreasonably knocked down with brick-bats in their manly efforts to sustain the good character of their city. On the contrary, their appeals were listened to and appreciated by their fellow citizens, who returned to their homes like law abiding men, fully imbued with the assurance that their civil authorities would quickly bring to justice and retribution the fiends who outraged the community.

THE NORFOLK AND ORLEANS STEAM ROUTE.—
The following extract from a letter of Hon. J. Y.
Mason to Col. Ellis, of Richmond, published in the Enquirer, gives some interesting information with regard to the projected Orleans and Norfolk route:

By one of those accidents, which sometimes exert such potent influence on human affairs as to justify the belief in a special Providence, Mr. Preston was placed in communication with the Orleans Railroad Company. Mr. Preston and I visited Nantes and San Nazaire, at the mouth of the Loire. At the latter point, the French government is constructing the most magnificent artificial harbor in the world.

Opening to the ocean, a ship sailing between that port and Chesapeake Bay would find a fine channel, and will find her route shortened by a considerable time than between Havre and the same point. On our return to Nantes, Mr. Preston was called on by the Chief Engineer and a Director of the Orleans Company, and explanations were so satisfactorily made that a negotiation was commenced, which, I think, is about to end in a complete success, if his constituents approve the basis of agreement. I will leave him to make known the terms of the proposition. I content myself with saying that he has done me the honor to confer with me at every stage of the negotiation—that he has conducted it with most honorable candor and with consummate ability.

I will add that the Orleans Company has a large capital, is the best managed Company in France, and owns a net-work of railroads which cover one-third of the Empire, connecting Paris with the ocean, and connecting with other lines to Switzerland, Italy, and Germany. I think our friends will be gratified that his arrangement will, if adopted, secure at such a trifling cost, now and for the future, such estimable advantages for us and our lines of improvement. I congratulate myself that no occasion has arisen for an application to the Imperial Government.

XXXVTH CONGRESS—FIRST SESSION.

Tuesday's Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.

Senate.—Mr. Houston to-day presented a resolution instructing the committee on foreign relations to inquire into the expediency of the Government's establishing a protectorate over Central America.
Laid over.

Mr. Hale, of N. H., submitted a resolution instructing the post office committee to inquire whether the transmission of mail between Washington and Boston cannot be expedited so as to prevent a detention of 12 hours in New York. Adopted.

Mr. Thompson, of N. J., presented a bill to establish a port of entry at Fort Mifflin, New Jersey.
Mr. Chandler, of Mich., submitted bills making appropriations for deepening the channel of Sta-mary's river and St. Clair Falls, Michigan. Referred.

Mr. Mason, of Virginia, called for the joint resolution providing for the reception of the Turkish Vice Admiral.

Mr. Clay, of Alabama, objected to the expenditure of money for such a purpose, as there was no limit to the amount, and no benefit could accrue from it.

House.—Mr. Letcher, of Virginia, from the Committee of Ways and Means, reported the deficiency appropriation bill.

Mr. Boyce, of South Carolina, called up the contested election case of Mr. Brooks contesting the seat of Mr. H. Winter Davis, of Maryland, on the ground that the election was carried by fraud and violence. Mr. Boyce argued against the prayer of Mr. Brooks, who asks exemption from the operation of the law of 1851, and that the Committee on Elections proceed to take testimony.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.

Last night officer McHenry arrested W. Fleming alias W. F. Norton, suspected of being the murderer of H. F. Robertson, of Winchester, Tenn., about Christmas. Subsequent information induces the belief that the same person followed Gen. Calhoun and his party from Kansas with nefarious designs.
He has been committed for further examination until the receipt of information from Tennessee Col. Carpenter, of Chicago, has been retained by Gen. Calhoun to assist in the prosecution.

J. Edward Barnes, superintendent of the Little Schuykill Navigation and Railroad Co., and Duncan Wilk, a mine agent, were suffocated in a mine, a short distance from this place, yesterday afternoon, by the gas. Their bodies were taken out about 11 o'clock last night.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 16.

Four large buildings on Fulton street, near the ferry landing, occupied as a carriage repository, alcohol distillery, boarding houses, etc., were destroyed by fire this morning. The loss probably exceeds $50,000.

The sailing of the Philadelphia has been postponed until the 18th.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 16.

Late advices from Kansas state that a party of Lane's men had visited Westport, Mo., in search of Mr. Danforth, a member of the LeCompton convention. The Missourians made no resistance.

Stofer, the Democratic representative of Leavenworth county, was recovering from the wounds received in the late attempt to murder him.

The grocery of Pat Laughlin, who killed Collins at Doniphan a year or two ago, was broken open during his absence, a few nights since, and its contents burned to the street.

A skirmish is said to have occurred at Fort Scott.
No particulars given. Denver refused to send troops there.

EXPLOSION OF NAPHTHA AT SEA.—Dreadful suffering and Loss of Life amongst the Crew.—On last Christmas day, the ship New England sailed from

New York bound for Glasgow. The crew, inclusive of officers, comprised eighteen men. A short time after the ship left, a terrible storm came on and caused the sea to sweep over and partially fill the vessel. The men were ordered to the pumps and in the midst of hail and rain, they day after day stood up to their waists in water, and almost perished with cold. Notwithstanding the continuous efforts of the men, the water gained ground and the vessel began to sink. The captain, A. Pemper, seeing the state of affairs to be increasingly perilous, directed certain portions of the cargo to be thrown overboard with a view of keeping the vessel about a little lighter. During the lightening of the storm, by some circumstance or other, a large quantity of naphtha ignited, causing a fearful explosion, and ran in liquid flames over the deck, making dreadful havoc amongst the seamen. One person was standing on a part of the vessel under which the naphtha was stored, and when the explosion occurred he was completely enveloped in flames; five others, including the first officer, were dreadfully burnt, and, in addition to the burning, one boy had his thigh broken. The men who escaped more serious injuries had their faces scorched and blackened. When matters were fast approaching a fatal crisis, the bark Cora Linn, Capt. J. Goudy, came sufficiently near to rescue the whole of the men from the burning vessel.—Phil. Journal.
